AS AN AVID COLLECTOR, ROBERT STILIN TAKES A CURATORIAL APPROACH TO A FAMILY-FRIENDLY YET UTTERLY REFINED MEDIA ROOM
PRODUCED BY JACQUELINE TERREBONNE

ROBERT STILIN

Known for conjuring elegantly handsome interiors that are not too precious with just the right amount of patina and a real sense of coziness, Robert Stilin believes in hanging significant art without ever making it too important in the space. For instance, he imagines a Richard Prince canvas animating a family media room, where it can be appreciated and admired. “If you can own art at that level,” he explains, “you should embrace it and live with it. It shouldn’t be a showpiece.” robertstilin.com

“I love the colors and the mood of this ‘Nurse’ painting by Richard Prince,” says Robert Stilin. “It’s sort of mysterious but also chic and slightly funny all at the same time.”
